OPEC extends Current pact to end of year

VIENNA, June 14, (Agencies): The OPEC today extended its current production agreement until the end of the year to try to stabilise flagging world oil prices.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Hisham Nazer told reporters that ministers of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries had signed a pact maintaining its present output ceiling after four days of turbulent taiks.

Under current rules, 12 of OPEC's 13 members are set an output ceiling totalling 15.06

On Saturday, two marauding Iranian gunboats slammed rocket-propelled grenades into a British-flagged but US-owned supertanker off the Saudi Arabian coast, igniting a fire but causing no injuries.

Britain protested the raid on the 258,979-ton fully laden supertanker Esso Demetia to Iran, pointing out the attack was unprovoked.

Earlier Saturday, three Iran-ian gunboats stalked West German container ship Dhaulagiri in the Strait of Hormuz, killing a Filipino seaman and injuring grenade attacks.

Today's raid brought to seven the number of confirmed Iranian raids on parichant mariners steaming through the strategic waterway in the last three weeks.

Recaptured

In the land war, Iraq said it launched a major offensive in the rugged mountains near the nortoday and recaptured five strategic border heights from Iranian troops. "Our forces stormed fortified enemy positions and killed or captured large numbers of enemy troops and destroyed their positions," a high com-mand communique said.

The communique listed heights of the five recaptured peaks ranging from 2,000 to 2,500 metres (6,500 to 8,200 feet) with their Kurdish names and said they dominated the battlefield in the vicinity.

It quoted Iran's top war spok-esman, Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, now the acting Armed Forces commander, as saying when the Iranians seized them in March: "Whoever controls these peaks will have the final word on the fate of the area."
Information Minister Latif

Nassif Al Jassem, quoted by the Iraqi News Agency INA, said the peaks would provide Iraq with an important strategic advan-

Baghdad's daily war communique made no mention of fighting in the Salamchah area of southern Iraq where Iraq said it repelled a major Iranian offensive yesterday. The Iranians said battles were still raging there today.

The communique on the past 24 hours of the war said Iraqi jets and helicopter gunships flew 272 combat missions today.

Iraq's Defence Ministry political department chief Abdul Jabbar Mohsen said that more than 5,000 Iranians had been killed, wounded or taken prisoner in the fighting.

Kuwait renewa appeal for peace

KUWAIT; praising the performance of the Iraqi Armed Forces, renewed appeals to Iran yesterday to accept a peaceful end to the Gulf war. "We are proud of Iraq's stead-fastness and firmness which uplifted all Arabs by recapturing its land and repulsing the latest Iranian offensive," Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmed told reporters.

Urging Tehran to make peace with Baghdad after almost eight years of war, he said the Iranians should follow the course of "wisdom and reason."

Shultz asks India and Pakistan

Curb nuclear development

UNITED NATIONS, June 14, (Agencies): Secretary of State George Shultz has said South Asia is the international hot spot most likely to trigger a nuclear war and publicly arged India and Pakistan to curb their development of nuclear wear Shultz was accressing a special General Assembly session on disarmament at UN headquarters in New York.

He also expressed concern about the introduction of advanced missiles into the Gulf war, saying that countries far removed from the conflict may be put at risk.

Dangerous Shultz said use of these advancod missiles in the Iran-Iraq war has led to the "indiscriminate slaughter" of civilians and made a peace settlement more difficult. "We are already seeing signs of a dangerous new arms race which will put at risk countries far removed from the Gulf region itself," he said.

He did not elaborate but appeared to be referring to the ballistic missiles which have been sold to Iran and Iraq. These missiles recently have been modified with sophisticated technology to extend their range and enable them to hit each other's capitals and more distant targets.

Encourage

Shultz said India and Pakistan should open their nuclear activities to international inspection and sign the 1968 nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty, which has been approved by 136 countries and seeks to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

"We must be most concerned about areas where regional tensions are high," Shultz said.
"Today it is in South Asia that the (nuclear) danger is most acute. We encourage the states of South Asia to take concrete steps to meet this urgent challenge." A State Department spokesman said Shultz was directing his remarks to India and Pakistan. He proposed no negotiating framework and made no specific offers of US aid.

Both countries have the capability to build nuclear weapons, although the Reagan administration has no evidence that either actually possesses such a device, a State Department official said.

However, each country has been stepping up its nuclear development plans in response to perceived threats from the other. Leonard Spector of the non-

Rocard asked to stay as caretaker

French premier resigns

PARIS, June 14, (UPI): Prime Minister Michel Rocard offered his resignation to President Francois Mitterrand today, two days after voters refused to give their Socialist Party an absolute majority in parliament.

Mitterrand accepted the resignations of Rocard's government spokesmen for the President said, but asked the premier to stay in a caretaker role until the re-elected national assembly meets for the first time June 23.

The two socialists met at the Presidential Elysee Palace for I-1/2 hours in the morning. Rocard made no comment to the press.

President Mitterrand said today he would ask Socialist Prime Minister Rocard to head a minority government.

NEWARK, N.J., June 14, (Reuter): In the first award of its kind against the tobacco industry, the husband of a woman who died of lung can-cer was awarded $400,000 on Monday by a jury which found that the Liggett Group Inc., a cigarette maker, failed to issue warnings about the risks of smoking.

However, the jury cleared Lig-gett, Philip Morris Cos and Lorrillard Inc of charges of issuing fraudulent information about cigarette smoking and conspiring to mislead the public that smoking was safe.

The four-month-old case - the biggest and most costly so far against the tobacco industry - was brought by Antonio Cipollone, whose wife Rose died of lung cancer in 1984 at the age of 58. Liggett said it would appeal.

"People have started feeling that the government is corrupt and for the first time it has become an election issue," said Murali Manehar Joshi, general secretary of the opposition Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP).

The BJP is one of several parties backing a single candidate in Allahabad, Rajiv's home town.

The candidate, Vishwanath Pratap Singh, quit Rajiv's cabinet to campaign against alleged government corruption and passionately repeated his accusations in his last speeches before the campaign closed this evening.

He alleged government officials had taken bribes from Swedish and West German companies which won major defence contracts.

Although the government denies the charges, even Congress (I) officials admit concern over the impact they are having on the campaign in Allahabad where a defeat to the party would be a major embarrassment

THE Higher Planning Council, meeting on Monday under chairmanship of HH the Crown Prince and Premier Sheikh Saad Al Abdullah, was briefed on reports of a number of subcommittees on the state's current and future policies in various fields.

Secretary general of the council Fuad Abdul Rahman Mula Hussein told KUNA that the council's 11th and final session for its first year 1987-88 considered a report tabled by the general policies committee that included recommendations on the second year of the five-year development plan 1986-87.

He added that the report focussed on the importance that the follow-up process of the development plan should be the responsibility of planning bureaus and committees in government ministries and institutions.

KUWAIT PRESS DIGEST

Call to end Arab isolation of Egypt

A KUWATTI paper yesterday repeated its call for ending Arab isolation of Egypt and reminded that Egypt remains the Arab leading power with its military and political weight.

Criticising the recent Algiers' Arab extraordinary summit for failure to re-admit Cairo into the Arab League, Al Rai Al Aam daily said, in its editorial yesterday, that the Arabs had failed to reconcile their differences at a time when the world's two mojor adversaries, the US and the Soviet Union, had agreed at the Moscow summit to start a new chapter of detente.

"Continued political isolation of Egypt," it opined, 'is an indica-tion of continued (Arab) state of weakness and Arab siding with the minority against the majority."

Al Rai Al Aam blamed the Arab ineptitude and lack of ability to face facts at the Algiers' summit and failure to reconsider calculations and take stock of the magnitude of changes in superpower relations with their reflections on the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Noting Egypt's position as the Arab leading force in the military and political fields, the paper believed that without Egypt's support, "the (ongoing Palestinian) uprising will remain weak and Arab summits ineffective unless their aim is to move capital or invest it in new spheres and channels."

passengers had reconfirmed their bookings.

KAC officials, who were heard discussing the situation. said the problem was compounded by six deportees on transit from Saudi Arabia who were put aboard the flight. At one point serious altercations were going on amongst the ground staff on whether to offload these six from the flight.

The staff at the check-in counters were of no help to the unfor-tunate passengers. When approached the managerial staff said: "We cannot help. The flight is overbooked. Go to the city office and ask them why they overbooked."

But this piece of advice was no splace to stee passengers as they had provided their relatives and families in Bangadesa about their arrival and many of these relatives were coming to Dhaka from far-flung areas.

The unco-operative attitude of the check-in staff ired these pas-

Then the staff said they would first accept group passengers and then the rest. Ultimately Hares was left behind. He had been at the airport since 6.45 pm. The flight was scheduled for 9.45 pm.

Kuwait calls for elimination of N-arms

UNITED NATIONS, June 14. (KUNA): Kuwait called today upon the world community to exert every possible effort to eliminate nuclear arms, but stressed the equal importance of ending wars by conventional means. "It is a noble thing to think seriously of those who would possibly be killed by nuclear arms in the future," Sulaiman Majed Al Shaheen said.

"Yet, it is very important that we make greater efforts to put an end to human atrocities and their victims who are currently killed by conventional arms," he said.

Al Shaheen, who is Undersecretary in the Kuwaiti Foreign Ministry, made his remarks before the General Assembly's special session on disarmament.

The Kuwaiti official noted that six wars have been fought in the Middle East region during the past 20 years, among them the Iraq-Iran war which has been raging for eight years in the proximity of Kuwait.

"At the time the Kuwaiti delegation lauds the consistently positive Iraqi stance towards all just and peaceful solutions as currently embodied in Security Council resolution 598, we equally add our voice to all the world's sincere efforts in calling upon Iran to seriously respond to international efforts so that peace, security and stability may prevail in the area in a manner that serves the interests of all," he

SEVERAL recent American box office hits have started to filter into Kuwait last week, and several should be available in the next few days. First to be released is a new police thriller starring an actor who seemed to have disappeared for several years, Sidney Poitier.

In Shoot to Kill, Poitier plays a streetwise California FBI agent who is incensed when a psycopathic killer shoots his hostage dead after the police fufil their part of the bargain in handing over a consignment of diamonds. The killer flees north and filters into a group of fishermen heading into the remote Rockies near the Canadian border. Their guide is a nubile young lady (Kirstie Alley) and her boyfriend, a skilled trail guide (Tom Berenger) joins the manhunt with Poitier. To tell more would spoil the story, but let me assure you that this one will keep you gripped to your seats right till the end. All the main stars are excellent and the backdrop of the Rocky Mountains (along with the occasional bear and moose), adds colour to an exciting film.

The Courier is a gritty British thriller about the wild side of life in Dublin. Gabriel Byrne plays Val, a ruthless drug dealer who fills up his packets of heroine with the odd grain of flash. He uses smack victim Danny for a job, and when Danny fouls up, adds a dose of strychnine to his pay packet. Danny's friend Mark, a streetwise ex-drug user, now a motorbike courier, swears revenge, and becomes part of Val's pusher network, delivering and dropping off packets of heroin. He substitutes parceis and sets Val up, delivering him his own packet and calling in the Drug Squad. But Val manages to fool the police, and sets his gang onto Mark, who goes into hiding. Despite the odd weakness in the script, leading to a few unintentional laughs. this thriller works surprisingly well. All credit to a cast who have made good use of a limited budget. Dramatic bursts of violence, and a good score featuring U2 and Elvis Costello days.

Shadow Dreams is a martial arts spectacular starring world champion Jeong Sook Lee as an immigrant to America whose family is murdered by Mafia-like property developers. In an attempt to revenge his family, he trains a fading boxer to take the world title from the property developers' protegee. Plenty of biffs and slo' mo' highkicks that will no doubt please kung fu aficionados. Police Academy has a lot to answer for apart from the endless sequels, we also have to put up with interminable cash-inon-the name spinoffs. Driving Academy comes complete with all easily identifiable characters — the geek, the spoilt rich girl, the jock, and the stud. Trying to keep them under control is teacher Larry, who has been threatened with the sack if the students fail. The intimidating Miss Savage is also assigned to the class to lick the kids into shape. The result is predictable, complete with the evil superior striving to sabotage their efforts. Whoever made this one should have his licence withdrawn.

Not Quite Human is typical Disney fodder for kids who are into computers and androids. The story involves a scientist and his teenage daughter Becky. Dad has just succeeded in creating an android called Chip, a 17-year-old all American boy who can even eat junkfood thanks to his special trash impacter.' But nasty Mr Vogel wants to turn Chip into a fighting machine. Entertaining

Talking about fighting machines, Rambo is back in cartoon form in a full length feature Rambo the Rescue. The plot is really an excuse for lots of gun battles, explosions and fighting, as he defeats the invading army almost single handedly with a barrage of weapons including fighter planes. What about Rambo III; Watch this space for more information next week!

INS agents do high pressure jobs

By Nadine Epstein

NOGALES, Arix.: It is 6 o'clock on a Sunday evening, and from the Nogales, Ariz., primary border checkpoint the lines of cars waiting to cross into the United States stretch back as far as the eye can see.

Rain, snow, or merciless sun, US Immigration and Naturalisation Service (INS) and Customs agents stand on a concrete slab surrounded by the swarm of automobiles. They work eight hours a day, six, often seven, days a week, making instant decisions about whom to choose for secondary checks — on the basis of pale fingernails, sweaty palms, red ears, averted eyes, forged green cards — things they learned to look for in training.

Inside the noisy border station, agents guard the pedestrian gate or stand behind a busy counter to issue permisos.

"It's a high-pressure job, and nobody ever tells our side,"says Carlos Ramirez, a popular FNS supervisor here.

"There's just one car after another. You have to make sure they should be admitted, that they have proper documents, and at the same time, see what they are bringing into the country. You have to listen to them, see what their bodies say, and check for drugs, all in a few seconds. They could be armed fugitives. You never know what's going to happen.'

Monotonous

Being an agent in a border city is a high-stress job, says Jesus Jerez, the inspector who just walked in. "When I got here in 1976, the divorce rate (among the agents) was 80 per cent and I was one," says Jerez, a supervisor filling in as an inspector. Jerez, whohas since remarried, was bitten by a Mexican homosexual whom he questioned Christmas night in 1986. Now he says he has to be tested for AIDS every year for the next five years.

At ports of entry, inspectors are under the constant eye of supervisors like Ramirez and Jerez, who also answer questions and make hard judgment calls. Supervisors decide if complaints are valid, based on their knowledge of inspectors.

Despite the fact that the most frequently heard complaint against the INS and Customs is udeness, Jerez maintains that the vast majority of inspectors are courteous and friendly. He says he screens out a lot of complaints from people he calls "nasties - you know, loudmouths." Sometimes supervisors decide that complaints are valid and agents have unnecessarily oversearched, overquestioned, or harassed. "I had one guy who had a real police attitude, Ramirez says. "Although we wear a badge and a sidearm, we are not police here.

Jerez and Ramirez say it is their job to catch things like this. In most cases, a few months of working with the agent does the trick. Sometimes supervisors decide an agent is unsuitable, and they begin the difficult task of transferring the agent.

"A lot of the job is personhas never pulled his gun and prides himself on that.

"Remember, inspectors are only human," says Jerez, who has been involved in five shooting incidents. "There's a personal and professional transference going on. ## Deregulation to continue

Socialists following moderate capitalist agenda

By David Francis

WASHINGTON: Socialists today are likely to be following a moderate capitalist agenda.

That's a thesis offered by Paul Craig Roberts, a former assistant secretary of the Treasury during President Reagan's first term. now at the Centre for Strategic and International Studies of Georgetown University in Washington.

There's some evidence to sup-port such a generalization.

In France, President Francois Mitterrand, re-elected to a second term, has said repeatedly that he will not revert to a doctrinaire socialist policy. Nor will he raise income taxes. He will continue with the deregulation of his country's financial industry.

Across the English Channel, the Labour Party's policy review group recently suggested a decided turn to the middle in party strategy. The party, if it accepts the draft report's far-reaching overhaul of policy, will reject re-nationalization of industries privatized by Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government. The report instead calls for tougher regulation of major utilities. It suggests promoting the competitiveness of British companies.

Of course, Thatcher now talks of running for a fourth term of office stretching well into the 1990s. Even with a more procapitalist platform, the Labour Party could remain in opposi-

Defeat

In West Germany, the govern-ing conservative Christian Democrat Party has suffered a defeat in its traditional northern stronghold of Schleswig-Holstein at the hands of the opposition Social Democrats. But a scandal in that state gave the election some aspects of a special circumstance.

In the United States, neither the Democrats nor Republicans would dare advocate socialism or even European-style social democracy. In fact, however, American government, with its various social measures, actually practices a weak form of social democracy.

All Western governments have what academics call "mixed economies," with the proportion of the economy going through the government varying from about 28 per cent (Japan) to 61 per cent (Sweden). All levels of US government use about 36 per cent of national output. Either a President George Bush or a President Michael Dukakis will remain thoroughly capitalist, though probably could be expected to move toward the economic centre from the strong conservatism of President Reagan.

Controls

In each of these democracies the desire to win an election tends to move major parties toward the middle, away from ideology. The result, notes Dr Roberts, is that citizens often complain that there isn't "a dime's difference" between the presidential candidates

One change in these days of Reaganism and the demonstrated economic failure of communism and orthodox socialism is that the so-called "left" behaves like moderate capital-

A decade or so ago, the so-called "right" behaved like moderate socialists, says Roberts, recalling as an example the wage and price controls imposed by President Nixon.

In the communist countries, China calls its capitalist practices socialism, perhaps winking an eye. Its peasants now have, in reality, private property (called long-term land contracts). Lessees of small factories are free to make a profit or loss like manufacturers in capitalist countries.

Managers of large companies are given more power under a contract system to make decisions outside central plan-ning and are systematically being freed from party control. China has been setting up free-entreprise zones, joint ventures with foreign capitalists, and even stock markets.

The result is a soaring economy, growing a real 9.4 per cent last year. If that were to continue, China's national output would exceed that of the Soviet Union in a couple of decades.

Aware of this threat, Soviet party chief Mikhail Gorbachev has been pushing reforms. He deserves Western support, Margaret Thatcher told an interviewer recently.

Credit

West German commercial banks, with government approval, agreed to provide Moscow with $2 billion in credit to buy the equipment and knowhow to modernize its food and consumer goods industries.

Such assistance is pouring money down a rat hole, Roberts contends. The Soviet reforms are too modest to make the economy substantially more efficient.

Even with such Western subsidies, the economy will fail further and further behind. Soviet leaders openly criticize central planning and the conservatism and privilege of the bureaucracy. But because they are afraid of losing political control, they limit their reforms. In China too, the Communist Party isn't likely to permit a genuine political rival Roberts wonders whether the Soviet Union, sliding down the economic chute, will attempt to retain its world position by military action.

But there are no signs of increased militarism at the moment. If anything, the withdrawal from Afghanistan indicates the reverse.

What all this shows is that economic pragmatism has been overruling economic ideology around the world. Economic results are today more measura-

RABAT, (Reuter): Five Arab countries in North Africa have made the first cautious move to fulfil their dream of a Maghreb union on Europe's doorstep.
But diplomats said the Wes-

The Western Sahara dispute was pushed to the sidelines after Algeria and Morocco last month resumed diplomatic ties, ruptured 12 years ago over Algerian support for Polisario guerrillas fighting Morocco for independence of the former Spanish colony.

Conditions

All sides now agree that the dispute should be resolved through a referendum under United Nations' auspices. But diplomats said the mercurial Libyan leader Muammar Khaddafi's views on unity were the main obstacle in the way of the Maghreb union.

Last year, Libya declined to join the 1983 Freidnship Treaty with Algeria, Mauritania and Tunisia as a first step towards Maghreb unity. Tripoli set its own conditions

WAKEFIELD, England, (AP): Single-union and no-strike deals are spreading in Britain, provoking a bitter fight among the country's declining unions which threatens to split their umbrella organization, the Trades Union Congress.

As the battle rages at union meetings in London, presenting the TUC with one of the worst crises in its 120-year history, such deals are quietly being struck in places like Wakefield. Here, the decline of traditional coal and textile industries makes getting a job much more important than defending union rights. In this red-brick, Yorkshire city of 59,000, the excitement surrounding a new £50-million ($91 million) plant being built jointly by Coca-Cola Co. and Cadbury Schweppes PLC is not about the single-union deal it will bring, but about the 500 new jobs it will provide to a region where unemployment is 12.7 per cent. This is almost 4 percentage points above the national

CJi i gegislationi i i Fri

Minister Margaret Thatcher's anti-union legislation and new shopfloor practices imported by Japanese manufacturers have transformed Britain's once strike-ridden organized labour.

Deals under which one union represents all the workers at a plant, and arbitration replaces the strike weapon, are expected to multiply even faster after a stunning defeat for the unions in Scotland in March.

Ford Motor Co. scrapped plans to build an electronics plant in Dundee because it couldn't get its unions to accept the single-union deal it had reached with the Amalgamated Engineering Union.

The dramatic reversal scuttled what would have been Ford's 23rd British plant, cost 450 new jobs and provoked widespread anger against what Scottish Secretary Malcolm Rifkind termed the unions' "neanderthal attitudes."

No-strike

Thirty single-union deals have been struck, 10 of which include no-strike provisions, compared with six single-union deals and zero no-strike agreements five years ago, according to the Amalgamated Engineering Union.
"The number is growing. We envision it doubling by the end of this year," said John Mann, the union's research manager.

Championing the new deals are the 800,000-strong Amalgamated Engineering Union and

Single-union deals changing Britain

the 360,000-member Electrical, Electronic, Telecommunication and Plumbing Union. John Edmonds, general secretary of the General Mun-icipal and Boilermakers, told his union's annual conference on June 7: "Single-union deals are the way of the future. We have just got to make sure they are respectable and that they are signed by unions which represent members properly."

Organized labour already is divided. The once mighty National Union of Mineworkers split following a disastrous 1984-85 colliery strike. The seamen are quarreling over how to fight staff cutbacks in the ferry services. Shrunk

In addition, strike-prone printworkers' unions have been emasculated by publishers introducing new newspaper technology. E i Hts. 31 aging FIAC amember-ship has shrunk from 13 million to 9 million since 1979, and Thatcher boasts that the days when Britain could be crippled by strikes are over. Days lost to strikes fell from 29 million in 1979 to just 2.5 million in the year up to last March. The Trades Union Congress is threatening to expel the electricians' union at its annual meeting in September over singleunion deals.

Meanwhile, the EETPU is balloting its members over whether to quit the TUC, and is talking to the AEU about joining forces to form their own breakaway organization that would take one-ninth of the TUC membership.

"Such a split in the union movement would change the face of industrial relations and have serious implications for the Labour Party," the Independent newspaper wrote. The loss of "two key affiliates would be financially and politically disastrous," it said.

The Labour Party is the main 3 opposition to Thatcher's Conservative government, and the unions are its power base.

A TUC Committee has agreed to establish a code of conduct regarding single-union and nostrike deals, but is fighting over what its contents should be:

The Wakefield factory, which is to be Europe's largest softdrink plant, "is going to mean a lot for the community of Wakchicld. We're very grateful," said Mayor George Parkinson.

New doubts surface about Ligachev's role ahead of conference

By Mary Elien Bortin

MOSCOW, (Reuter): The role of politburo member Yegor Ligachev has become the subject of new speculation in the tense runup to this month's Communist Party conference on Kremlin reform, the major event of the Soviet political year.

With just over two weeks remaining before the conference opens on June 28, some analysts believe Ligachev may have lost the ideology portfolio which made him number two to Kremlin leader Mikhail Gorbachev for the past three years.

Divided

But others say no clear signs have emerged of a loss of prestige for Ligachev. At least publicly, they say, Gorbachev appears concerned to portray his deputy's post as secure.

'As for comrade Ligachev and' his retirement, that problem is simply non-existent," Gorbachev declared as the superpower summit drew to a close early this month. His statement at a nationally televised news conference, reprinted in the party newspaper Pravda, reached a mass Soviet audience. But it failed to quell speculation that Ligachev, without retiring, may have been downgraded. Western sources with links to the party say Ligachev's functions appear to have been divided between politburo member Alexander Yakovlev and Central Committee secretary Georgy Razumovsky, with Gorbachev himself in top charge of ideology. According to this theory, Yakovley - one of Gorbachev's closest allies - has taken over and Razumovsky commands party organisational matters. This would put Razumovsky in charge of organizing the fourday conference, which is due to discuss deep reform of the Soviet political system.

In the run-up to the conference, the struggle between full responsibility for the media party reformers and conservatives has quickened, giving new urgency to the question of which forces will prevail. Ligachev, 67, is viewed by progressive Soviet intellectuals as a conservative whose cautious approach to change has made him a beacon for opponents of the reform drive.

Many of these opponents work within the party apparatus.

Their resistance to change has built up as Gorbachev forges ahead with moves which would cut their privilege and power. Among the most controversial reforms on the conference agenda is a proposal to limit party officials to two five-year terms in office, ending the Soviet tradition of posts for life. Local party leaders fiercely. opposed to such a move put up a strong fight last month during the election of conference delegates. In many Soviet regions, they engineered the rejection of leading backers of reform as delegates. Well-informed sources say the ruling politburo riposted by ordering regional party bodies to elect pro-reform Moscow-based politicians and intellectuals as conference delegates.

As regional lists were published last week, the number of ardent reformers known to be conference delegates swelled. They range from Foreign Min-ister Eduard Shevardnadze, elected in his native Georgia, to outs-poken editor Vitaly Korotich, elected in the Kherson region of #### the Ukraine. Controversial

But by far the most controversial delegate elected in a far-flung province was Boris Yeltsin, the fiery former Moscow city party chief dismissed in disgrace last November for complaining that reform was proceeding too, Yeltsin, 57, was elected in Karelia on May 28, two days before he publicly denounced Ligachev as an opponent of change and called for his removal. His remark to a Western interviewer prompted Gorbachev's defence of Ligachev two days later. . .

But analysts say Yeltsin must have had some hint that his controversial remarks would not be totally unacceptable to Gorbachev and his reformist colleagues in the leadership.

The Yeltsin interview with the British Broadcasting Corpora-tion was arranged by the Soviet state broadcasting body Gos-teleradio. Yakovlev is believed to have authorised it.

"Yeltsin has begun serving as a spokesman for the left," one analyst commented." He said Gorbachev, who has skilfully steered a middle path to avoid alienating party conservatives, was expected to use Yeltsin to voice more radical views. Analysts expect Yeltsin to be given the floor at the party conference. They say other strong backers of reform are also expected to get priority treatment as debates get under way.

Changes

A major unanswered question is whether the conference will enact leadership changes which could formalise Ligachev's shift of duties - or confirm him as solidly in the number two spot. Under a precedent set before the party stopped holding regular conferences in 1941, up. to one-fifth of the membership of

One of the most persistent questions inevitably comes accompanied by a shocked expression and an awed voice. "Is what you write the honest-to-goodness truth? Do those things really happen in your house, and in your life?"

Without a moment's hesitation, I can answer an unequivocal "Yes" — not with enthusiasm, but certainly with honesty ... and resignation. While I occasionally embellish the events, or resort to a little poetic license, each column article has been based on incredible but actual reality.

My family's impressions, gathered in an independent survey, support the асситасу of my response. My children say that life in our family is a constant enactment of TV's Cosby Show. The only difference is that we haven't won the Best Series award yet. My husband, however, feels that our existence is more like an ongoing episode of Mystery Theatre. He never knows what to expect and is terrified to anticipate ... just in case he's right. The quickest way to wipe a smile off his face is to greet him with the phrase, 'Guess what?"

The query, "Where do you get all your ideas?" Is easily answered if you've read the previous paragraph properly. To elaborate further, a week

Nevertheless, apart from this rather unique source of inspiration, and despite the snide comments of my family, I refuse to believe that our home situation is radically unlike that of anyone else's. Perhaps we just react to daily ups and downs in a slightly less conventional manner. Heaven knows I try to react normally. One of the most sensitive questions I receive is "Do your husband and children ever get angry or embarrassed at what you write about them?" Absolutely. Sometimes they yell and scream and stomp their feet but I just laugh at them (I'm too cheap to throw coins). I can usually keep everyone in line by threatening them with the phrase, "Could this be fodder for the column? Will we all be reading about this in next week's column?"

To my son's credit, after enduring the dubious prestige of having his name and naughtiness relentlessly

Other remarks .come from gleeful wives who confirm that I've illustrated their husbands' faults and follies (using my own husband as the "fall guy") with uncanny accuracy. One or two men of a more chauvinistic ilk have been known to mutter frosty phrases which plainly indicate that they, on behalf of manhood in general, are not amused at the gentle pokes I make at their expense.

One friend, living in another part of the country, wrote the following comment: "There's no need to ask what's happening in your family. We keep up to date by reading the newspaper every week. We particularly enjoy the theme of low cunning overcoming high ideals.

It takes more than 40 measurements, 50 hours and 90 steps to make a suit which can cost anything between 500 and 1,200 pounds (950 and 2,300 dollars).

His and many other large tailoring companies make regular sales trips to the United States, working out of hotel rooms where they measure customers and take orders.

Along with Englishmen whose families have had the same tailor for generations, some foreigners prefer to visit the Savile Row area in person.

But property reforms last year abolished the 'light industrial space, category which covered the Savile Row area, and the tailors' premises are now classified as 'office space' — a change which could quadruple rents and local taxes when their leases come up for next four or five years." He said smaller firms might have to amalgamate to cut their rent bills and larger companies could rent part of their premises to individual tailors. The property changes also mean the tailors' premises could be redeveloped into office space, which is at a premium in central London. Ironically, Logsdail said the development of the financial services sector in the mid-1980s boosted the tailoring business which has been slowly declining since the advent of ready-to-

"Our whole existence here started through the need for a tailor to be near his customer. This is still so today. The large important hotels nearby like Claridges all feed us with customers," Cundey said.

"There are many, many Americans who have seen Buckingham Palace, they've seen the Tower of London and yet they still come here, specifically to get their Savile Row suit and to take their wife to the London theatre," Cundey said.

Peaceful and exotic creatures under threat

Conserving the lemurs of Madagascar

By Nancy Herndon

DURHAM, N.C.: For 165 million years after the island of Madagascar tore loose from the African continent. creatures living there evolved in isolation from the larger world. Birds, plants, and animals that were eliminated by competition elsewhere flourished in the forests. Gentle, primitive lemurs were the only primates to emerge.

Today, two-thirds of the rain forest has been cleared for pasture land and fuel. With their nabitat gone, these creatures. found nowhere else on earth, are disappearing. Scientists believe that if present trends continue, many of the 40 known subspecies of lemurs on Madagascar, the world's fourth-largest island, will be extinct by the year 2000.

But man can protect as well as destroy. Scientific curiosity. economic incentives, and man's sense of affinity with all life have joined to protect the future of Madagascar's treasures.

Madagascar, about twice the size of Arizona, now has II nature reserves. With help from the Duke University Primate Centre in Durham, N.C., and the World Wildlife Fund it is establishing its third national park. Officials hope that the preserves can attract foreign visitors and generate income for the country.

"Our first priority is to save what is left of the habitat - to establish the parks on Madagascar," says Elwyn Simons, a paleontologist and the directors. the director of the Duke primate centre. This year the centre signed an accord with the island government for a joint programme of conservation, education, and research to help prevent extinction of the Hunting and logging are still widespread in the preserves, and game wardens lack funds and vehicles co combat the pressures of an expanding population. Eighty per cent of Madagascar's 10 million people live by hunting and farming. Many do not know that lemurs and other creatures are unique to the island.

As a "second line of defence," the Duke primate centre has bred the world's largest colony of lemurs in captivity. Scientists hope that someday they may be able to release the captive-bred animals safely in their natural and child-size Western sifaka lemurs are protected by the local belief that they are "men of the forest." But the nocturnal aye-aye lemurs are feared as an omen of death and often are killed on sight.

Apart from their historical significance, lemurs fascinate scientists with their diversity. On Madagascar, they have evolved into 13 genera, 26 species, and 40 known subspecies. The smallest, the mouse lemur, is the size of a newborn kitten. The indiri is about the size of a three-yearold child. has spent many seasons in the Madagascar forest watching groups of lemurs peacefully munching bamboo. Since 1972 the Duke primate centre has been the only US group permitted by the Madagascar government to take lemurs from their natural habitat. The centre is able to breed lemurs much faster than they would naturally reproduce in the arduous conditions of the wild. About 90 percent of the 537 lemurs at the primate centre were born in the last 17

All the centre's research is benign, designed to monitor the behaviour, health, and reproductive cycles of the captive animals and learn their

"We only ... do things you might do for your own chil-dren," says Dr Simons, adding that most of the scientists who work with the lemurs "feel they are very beautiful and very gen-tle and vulnerable because they are so endangered.

When a new lemur is brought to the centre, it is kept indoors and carefully watched for its tastes and preferences. Its choice of foods includes bamboo grown in the North Carolina forest, mango, mimosa, sumac, and tropical fruits. Walls of the indoor enclosures are painted deep green and crisscrossed with branches and kudzu vines.

Outdoors, ringtailed and ruffed lemurs live in four natural habitat enclosures of one to 12 acres. Here scientists monitor how closely the behaviour of captive-born animals resembles that of those born in the wild.

Unlike chimpanzees, which have to be taught basic skills when returned to wild, lemurs act in largely instinctive ways, says Kay Izard, a reproductive psychologist. Even captive-born lemurs find as many as 20 types of plants they can eat in the North Carolina forest. They avoid poisonous plants and give proper warning calls for ground predstors and birds of prey. After acclimatization, they could adapt to a free life in Madagascar, Dr Izard believes.

To make that return possible, scientists from the Duke primate centre are helping to plan education programmes for the island's schoolchildren and setting up a captive-breeding programme in a zoo on the island. Pat Wright is working with villages to develop alter-natives to logging and hunting in the forests.

"The government of Madagascar is well aware now of the importance of their wildlife." says anthropologist Wright who believes that the day will come when lemurs can be returned to their natural home. CHATHAM Islands: Searchlights stab the windswept night over one of the world's loneliest groups of islands, hunting for a bird that is on international lists of endan-gered species.

The bird is the taiko, one of the rarest forms of petrels in the world. For a century it was were once again found on these storm-tossed islands 800 kilometres southeast of and part of New Zealand.

Petrels live over the oceans, feeding on squid and fish. They only need come ashore to breed, laying their eggs in the ground. New Zealand naturalists have clubbed together in a project to find the breeding grounds of the taiko, so that they can be protected from the ravages of wild cats, boars, rats and opossums - foreign animals given a foothold here last century by man. Signal

Suddenly a shadow flaps through the searchlight beam and excitement breaks out in and excitement breaks out in our camp flanking the Tuku Valley. Sodden faces perk up and extra batteries of lights power on, combing the low, billowing clouds for the unidentified flying object.

OUESTION: I am losing my hair very rapidly these days. I am young and I don't want to buy hairpieces or have implants. I have heard there is a new medication used to prevent baldness. Can it help me?

ANSWER: Back in the early 1980s a drug used for the control of severe high blood pressure was found to have, as a side effect. the increase of hair growth on the face and ears and in some people the reversal of male pattern baldness. How this drug (it's called minoxidil) works remain a mystery but it is believed to aid in hair growth by increasing blood flow to the scalp and thereby stimulating new hair development. While initial excitement led to great interest in the further pursuit of this side effect, it did not significantly alter baldness in all patients. The drug does seem to work best when applied directly to the scalp and in those with small areas where hair loss has occurred recently. Hair growth reaches its maximum rate during the first year of use but is considerably less in subsequent years and seems to cease soon after stopping the medication. In order to sustain its effect it must therefore be used indefinitely, and the long-term effects of its use are not known. The cost is about $40 per me, is every breast lump a cancer? ANSWER: Absolutely not! But you must suspect every breast lump to be cancerous until diagnosed as something else, so that no problems are overlooked and allowed to progress without proper attention. Remember that breast cancer strikes one out of 10 women in this country. If you have a family history of the disease, you must be particularly watchful. Having no family history of breast cancer, however, doesn't let you off the hook. Eighty-five per cent of the women ages 35 to 50 who have breast cancer have no family history of the disease. Take the aggressive route by doing monthly breast self-examination, and report any changes to your doctor. With your doctor's help, the problem can be fully evaluated.

About half the women of child-bearing age have lumpy, bumpy breasts. The lumps can be caused by a variety of conditions, but the most common is sometimes called "fibrocystic disease." This term is being used less and less because the condition is a normal one and many feel it is inaccurate to characterise it as a "disease." Instead, the lumps and thickenings are the breast tissue's normal response to the body's monthly hormonal fluctuations. This may continue after menopause if hormonal replacement is

There is no proof that women with fibrocystic breasts are more prone to cancer! however, the danger is that they may have a cancerous lump that goes undetected. Women with difficult-to-examine breasts may avoid the important monthly task of breast self-examination, because they are confused about what they are feeling. This is understandable, but it's not smart. Examine your breasts the same day of your cycle each month, after your period. If you don't know how to perform the exam properly, call the American Cancer Society or your doctor's office. The key is doing regular, thorough examinations so that you know your breast tissue and will identify changes in it. The new, low-dose mammograms are also excellent ways to diagnose breast cancer in its earliest, most treatable stages.

KLANG, Malaysia, (Reuter): The crows of Klang bave worn

Originally imported to devour pests plaguing crops near this Malaysian port town, the birds became a plague themselves.

After several crow shoots which eliminated thousands of crows but brought protests from citizens, authorities resorted to traps.

Over 68,000 of the bigbeaked, black birds have been enticed into traps and killed in the past 40 months, said Jacob Chacko Klang's chief health inspector.
We must keep trapping the crows since they keep multiplying," he said. Chacko said trapping had proved a more effective and less controversial way than shooting to control the town's crow problem, which dates from the beginning of this century. Trapping crows is a permanent fixture here. It's the cheapest way of getting rid of them," he said.

The history of klang's crows is one of the more bizarre examples of Britain's colonial legacy n the South-East Asian nation. Klang officials, concerned that pests were destroying the local coconut crop, brought in a consignment of crows from another British colony, Ceylon (now Sri Lanka), where they had been feeding on the same tinued to reproduce and further shoots, in which scores of gunmen fired at the hapless creatures over two days, took place in 1985 and 1986. Thousands of crows died but animal welfare groups and Klang residents complained.

US President to ask summit partners to forge a unified stance

Reagan calls for new effort to aid Afghanistan and Philippines

WASHINGTON, June 14, (Reuter): President Reagan yesterday challenged major Wes-tern industrialised nations to help the United States rebuild the shattered economies of Afghanistan and the Philippines.

Reagan, in a preview of his agenda for next week's Toronto economic summit, also called for new ways to help sub-Saharan African nations reschedule their massive foreign debts as part of a new initiative he called a venture to progress.

Forge

The President said he would ask his summit partners — the leaders of Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Canada and Japan — to forge a unified stance at the so-called Uruguay round of trade negotiations by the end

"It's time that we in the summit nations forget about quitting time and join in a great venture to progress - a joint venture that opens the international marketplace and that also strengthens the weak links in the international economy," Reagan said in a speech prepared for delivery to the Atlantic Council, a private institution that supports NATO.
"Let us join together to help restore the economies of two countries: one - the Philippines a heroic democracy ravaged by Communist-led insurrection. the other — Afghanistan — a victim of brutal aggression," he

Final

The Toronto meeting of the seven major industrialised nations from June 19 to 21 will be Reagan's final summit with his Western partners. He leaves office in January, 1989, after completing a maximum two terms as president.

He did not elaborate on his proposal to reconstruct the economies of Afghanistan and the Philippines and was also vague on his plan to relieve the debt burden of poorer African

"Let us join together in helping the countries of sub-Saharan Africa work out their debt problems," Reagan said. "We will take up their problems, as we have those of other debtor nations, on a case by case basis, working to develop economic policies that promote growth and opportunity."

Reagan did not specifically address a call by French President Francois Mitterrand two weeks ago for the summit partners to follow France's lead and forgive one third of the foreign debts of these African states.

In a speech that stressed the growing interdependence of the world's trading nations, Reagan said he hoped the Toronto meeting would agree on a common position to promote freer international commerce and in particular reduce farm subsidies.

"Agriculture is planted on the agenda of the Uruguay round of trade talks -- as are the issues of establishing rules for trade in intellectual property, investment, services, and the lowering of tariff and non-tariff trade barriers." he said.

Co-ordination

Noting that the trade negotiations, under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and due to conclude in 1992, had reached their half-way point, Reagan declared: "It's time to narrow down and lay out specific goals, a road map, a timetable to the fin-summit," Reagan said.

The US leader said economic opportunities as well as the encouraging outcome of his recently concluded Moscow summit talks with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev made him optimistic the world was on the threshold of "an economic and technological future immense with promise.

He credited the performance of his administration over the past eight years as being the driving force behind an improving worldwide economic outlook. "The industrial world — the entire world - is turning away from state control of economies and returning to the market place," he said. "From India to Argentina, from Africa to China, and even in the Soviet Union, the shackles of state economic domination are beginning to loosen."

"The summit nations are working together as never before because our economies are tied together as never before," he said. "In this global marketplace, industries around the world rise and fall together."

Reagan used much of his speech to extoll the virtues of his own economic policy of lowering tax rates, easing government regulation and otherwise encouraging US business investment, and said he believes that many of the other industrialised democracies have begun to follow the US pattern.

Consensus "This new consensus (on economic growth strategy) has not only brought the economies of America, Britain, Canada and so many other countries roaring back, it also has opened the way for co-ordination of economic policy among the summit countries that would have been unthinkable just a few years ago," he

In his speech, the President made it clear he thinks the summit partners should move with greater speed on the question of agricultural subsidies. "In no field do we have more weeding to do than agriculture. where subsidies cost the consumers and the taxpayers of Europe, North America and Japan $200 billion a year." he

The President noted that agriculture has been a principal item on the agenda of the socalled "Uruguay round" of trade talks. but said not enough has been accomplished there. Scheduled

Icahn discussed plans to buy Texaco

NEW YORK, June 14, (AP): Takeover strategist Carl C. Icahn says he discussed a joint acquisition of Texaco Inc., the third-largest US oil company. with two Canadian oil concerns and that Citibank verbally agreed to finance such a deal.

The disclosures were contained in a weekend deposition of Texaco's largest shareholder, the Wall Street Journal reported yes-

The deposition was part of escalating legal manoeuvres bet-ween Icahn and Texaco over his attempt to buy the company for $60 a share, which values it at $14.6 billion.

Içahn and Texaço, have been engrossed in an acrimonious takeover dispute since last month, the latest episode in the troubled oil giant's attempt to normalise following its prolonged bankruptcy-court ordeal.

The investor, who owns 14.8 per cent of Texaco stock, is conducting a proxy fight for five seats on the company's board in an effort to pressure man-agement into letting shareholders vote on his takeover offer. Results of the proxy contest will be disclosed at the company's annual meeting on Friday.

Icahn disclosed to Texaco lawyers that in the last two weeks he held separate discussions toward a possible takeover partnership with Gulf Canada Ltd. and Husky Oil Ltd. Icahn also said a Citibank representative assured him that financing a Texaco takeover was "eminently

His disclosures could substantiate Texaco's claim that Icahn has improperly failed to disclose the extent of his takeover talks with other parties. Icahn has den-

Japan increases foreign development aid

TOKYO, June 14, (AP): Japan announced today a two-fold increase in foreign development aid — to total more than $50 billion over a five-year period ending in calendar year 1992 in a bid to surpass the United States as the world's biggest aid

A Foreign Ministry official said the amount, totalling "over $50 billion," is twice that of the roughly $25 billion Japan gave in the past five years as aid, or Official Development Assistance (ODA).

Approved Hideaki Domichi, deputy director of the ministry's aid policy division, said the cabinets, approved the drastic QDA hike in its morning session, defining strating the Japanese government's "strong determination to Domichi told a news conference, adding that US foreign development aid totaled $9.6 billion in 1986, the last year for which figures were available.

He said Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita will elaborate on the new medium-term target, the fourth in a series, at the upcoming summit of seven industrial nations in Toronto, Canada, June 19-21.

The United States and the other 17 donor countries in the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development have urged Japan to spend more on aid and imporve its ODA share as a ratio of Gross National Product to better reflect its current prosperity. Target

Japan's ODA as a percentage of GNP stood at 0.34 in 1984, 11th among the 18 donor countries, and at 0.29 in 1985 and 1986 to place 15th out of the 18 OECD In 1986 Norway placed first with a ratio of 1.2 per cent while Austria had the lowest ratio of 0.21 per cent. The average ratio of the 18 countries stood at 0.35 per cent in 1985 and 1986. Domichi said the new target is aimed at spending more than

0.35 per cent of Japan's GNP towards the end of the five-year period. The aid totalled $7.45 billion in 1987, up 32.3 per cent in dollar terms from the previous year and 13.5 per cent higher on a yen basis, for a ratio of 0.31 per cent of GNP, he said.

Finance Minister Kiichi Miyazawa told a news conference that Japan will meet the increase "with or without the exchange rate factor." The yen's appreciation against the US dollar, from 242 yen in the fall of 1985 to the current 124-125 yen level, has made it possible to measure foreign aid and other financial standards in higher الانتخاب تين دارين dollar terms. ال

Grants In the new five year plan, Domichi said, grants and debt relief to the least developed countries will be increased.

He would not estimate the percentage of grants but said it certainly will be higher than the ratio of 60.7 per cent in 1986. A figure was not immediately available for 1987. Japan's grants made up only 46.2 per cent of its total aid in 1984 and 47.5 per cent in 1985. By contrast, the United States gave 88.9 per cent of its ODA as grants in 1985 and ratio further increased to 91.1 per cent in 1986, according to Japanese Foreign Ministry officials. US aid, however, has been held down in the past several years by Washington's budget restraints, and the US aid radio of 0.23 per cent of GNP in 1986 might further shrink in the near future, the officials said. Domichi said the annual 3.0 per cent interest rate of Japan's ODA loans has been reduced to 2.6 per cent a year.

The ven's strength against other currencies has caused trouble for countries that took yen loans and now have to repay by earning devalued dollars.

Canadian Wheat Board signs rescheduling deal with Egypt

CAIRO, June 14, (Reuter): The Canadian Wheat Board has broken a log-jam in Egypt's debt rescheduling talks with seven Western governments but arguments over interest rates are continuing with other creditors, diplomats said today.

They said the slow pace of the bilateral talks could delay, but not block, an expected Egyptian request to the Paris Club of creditor governments for fresh rescheduling of an estimated $5 billion in instalments due from

Responsible Canadian officials said the Winnipeg-based wheat board, responsible for wheat exports, signed an agreement last Thursday to reschedule payments due from January 1987 to next month. They declined to reveal the amount involved but said payments to the wheat board formed the biggest part of Canada's $150 to 200 million rescheduling with Egypt.

The Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) had also agreed with Cairo on rescheduling up to $10 million but the loan-guarantor Export Development Corporation was still negotiating on at least $40 million in instalments.

Diplomats said Canada's partial accord was the first since April between Egypt and any of the 17 Paris Club creditors which agreed in principle last year to rewrite 18 months of Egyptian instalments.

Up to the end of April, Cairo had signed 10 accords for $4.7 billion with individual govern-ments, including the two biggest creditors, France and the United

But talks on more than $1 billion in reschedulings have hung fire while creditors resist Egypt's insistence on the lowest available interest rates.

Apart from Canada, those still negotiating are Switzerland (on about $320 million), Japan (309 million), Australia (214 million). Britain (180 million), Sweden (50 million) and Norway (19 million).

Egypt, with a total foreign debt of more than $43 billion, is considered certain to seek fresh rescheduling of payments from July I until the end of 1989, unofficially estimated at $5 billion or

Western donors expected to finalise aid package for Indonesia

JAKARTA, June 14, (Reuter): Western aid donors meeting in the Hague are expected to finalise a multi-billion dollar aid package to help Indonesia meet its mounting debts.

Some bankers and government officials now appear to believe that longer-term solutions are needed to tackle the country's rising external debt. now the largest in Asia. Finance Minister Johannes Sumarlin proposed in a speech last week three measures that Japan, Indonesia's main trading partner and foreign investor, could adopt to alleviate part of the problem.

Option He said Japan could convert all or part of existing debt into grants, it could switch future commitments from loans to outright grants or it could provide Indonesia with the option of repaying loans at the exchange rate prevailing when the loans were originally signed. Sumarlin said the most favoured option, which should be considered urgently by Tokyo, was the third. He estimated backdating interest levels could save Indonesia $1.5 billion in debt repayments this year alone.

The World Bank forecast Indonesia's total external debt would rise to $50 billion at the end of 1988, against 47.3 billion in 1987 and $32.1 billion in 1985. Much of the rise is a result of the rapid appreciation of the Japanese currency because one third of Indonesia's official debt

A Western diplomat said: "The biggest problem for Indonesia is that this rise in their debt repayments is eating up about a third of their state budget, but is totally beyond their control because most of it is the result not of new borrowing but of the rise in the value of the yen.

Japan takes half of Indonesia's oil output and many Indonesian officials believe it would be in Tokyo's interest to grant President Suharto's government the breathing space needed to get the economy in order.

"Indonesia is not asking for a hand-out from Japan, but simply a significant gesture of under-standing on the part of 'an old brother', the Jakarta Post said in an editorial

The suggestions were the first publicly presented proposals for easier debt repayment terms made by Indonesia, the largest country in South-East Asia with a population of 175 million.

Sumarlin presented them ahead of the meeting in the Hague today and tomorrow of Indonesia's main aid donors, who have helped underpin President Suharto's militarybacked government for the past 20 years.

Assistance

The World Bank is proposing that the 14 donors, which include Japan, the US and several Western European countries, increase their aid package to $3.6 billion in the present financial year which ends in March, from $3.19 billion pledged in assistance and soft loans last year.

Japan has already announced its assistance to Indonesia would total $2.3 billion in the current financial year, up from $1.23 billion last year. Around half of this will be channelled through the donors' organisation known as the Inter-Governmental Group on Indonesia (IGGI), which also includes major lending institutions such as the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund.

Diplomats knowledgeable about IGGI said they expected pledges to exceed the World Bank recommendation.

Most of the donors are sympathetic to Indonesia's position, they said.

"Indonesia's been one of the models of a Thrid World country doing what the lending institutions want often before they say it," said a diplomat who will attend the Hague meeting. "We can't let them down now,

Indonesia, a member of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), was affected badly by the 1986 crash in world oil prices, which coincided with the rise in the value of the yen and the fall of the dollar. Oil income fell and debt servicing escalated.

ATLANTA, Georgia, June 14, (Reuter): A US grand jury has subpoenaed records of Coca-Cola to determine whether the company paid bribes to do business in the Soviet Union, the Atlanta Constitution newspaper reported on Saturday. Coca-Cola said allegations of bribery in connection with its business in the Soviet Union were 'ridiculous.' In a copyright story, the Constitution said company records were subpoensed by a federal jury in Atlanta which is probing whether Coca-Cola bribed persons in the Soviet Union to obtain permission to sell its cola products there. BEIJING, June 14, (AP): China's industrial output is expected to grow 16.3 per cent and inflation may creep up to 13 per cent ir the first three quarters of this year, an official report predicted today. The China Daily quoted Wu Minglu, economist for the National Research Centre for the Development of Science and Technology, as saying industrial output will reach 874 6 billion ynan ($236 billion) in the first nine months of the year. In the first four months of 1988. China's industrial output value reset to 9 per cent, hitting a two-year high in April of 17.9 per cent higher than the same month last year. The Chinese government has responded by trying to clamp down on credit and limit new construction projects. The high growth rate, led by expansion of light industry. has strained government finances and depleted scarce raw materials needed for key beavy industry projects. In 1987, industrial output rose 16.5 per cent while the Gross National Product grew by 9.4 per cent. China's commodity retail volume was up 23.1 per cent and retail prices rose 10.7 per cent in the first quarter of the year, both highs for the past few years. We said moves to end price controls over more commodities will continue to fuel inflation, forcing it to 12 per cent in the second quarter and 13 per cent in the third. Chinese economists regard inflation, spurred by rising consumer demand and the removal of price controls on some food products, as the most serious issue facing the nation's economic reforms.

Soviet electronic goods on display at Polish trade fair

WARSAW, June 14, (AP): The Soviet Union has put on a display of its electronic prowess at the Poznan International Fair. Poland's oldest and largest trade event, according to the official PAP news agency. In more than 3,000 exhibits, the Soviets emphasised the need for introducing microelectronics into industry. The Soviet brought out their latest personal computers as well as computer-controlled machine tools. Poland followed its largest trading partner's cue with an exhibit of its latest televisions. radios and louds seakers. Polish trade officials hope that export of such products will help reduce the country's $39 billion debt. Exports permit the improvement of the balance of payments which is very tense owing to Poland's foreign debt," Prime Minister Zbigniew Messner was quoted by PAP as telling fair participants at the opening on Sunday in this city 300 kilometres (180 miles) west of Warsaw. But Wladyslaw Gwiazda, minister for foreign economic relations, warned that Poland current level of exports does not meet its potential or its need, the agency said Organisers say more than 4,200 exhibitors from 41 countries have arrived for the 60th Poznan Fair, which after Leipzig, in East Germany, is the most important trade event in Eastern Europe. While the Soviet have focused on high-tech, the United States pavilion features machinery needed for the food processing, chemical and pharmaceutical industry.

Mexico seeks new ways to reduce interest on debt

MEXICO CITY, June 14, (AP): Treasury Secretary Gustavo Petricioli says he is seeking new formulas to reduce the interest charges on the nation's foreign debt of $100 billion, the second highest in the developing world. Petricioli spoke with reporters before going to Washington for talks with US Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, World Bank President Barber Conable and International Monetary Fund Director Michel Camdessus. Even though restructuring has helped reduce the debt from $105 billion to 100 billion interest payments are still draining the alling Mexican economy, he said, according to reports in several Mexico City newspapers yesterday. Mexico paid between $8 billion and 9 billion in interest last year. It has paid a total of $50 billion in interest and amortization in the last six years. At the same time Mexico is trying to reduce its debt, it is looking for new credit. During his Washington visit, Petricioli will formally accept a $265-million World Bank loan destined to the fertiliser industry. Miguel Angel Gurria Trevino, the chief debt negotiator, told the government newspaper El Nacional that Mexico is pressing ahead with proposals to pare the debt through interest rate cuts and by swapping loans from commercial bankers for lower-interest bonds. The first bond swap, in February, did not live up to expectations. Mexico rejected nearly half of the bids as too low.

But it still cut $1.1 billion from its debt. Latin American countries create new lending agency

LIMA, Peru, June 14, (UPI): Five Latin American countries on Friday signed an agreement to create a new regional lending agency and iessen their dependence on the International Mon-etary Fund. Economy ministers and ambassadors of Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Venezuela signed the agreement covering the creation of the Latin American Reserve Fund. The fund will start operations as soon as the parliaments of the signing countries ratify the plan. The new agency will replace the Andean Reserve Fund, created in 1978 to extend loans to countries in the region, and is expected to broaden its role. A statement issued after the signing indicated that the new agency is expected to lessen the dependence on the IMF and its rigid economic guidelines. It stressed that at the height of the Latin debt crisis in the early 1980s, the Andean Reserve Fund "offered more credits to the Andean nations than the IMF... without imposing virtually interventionist economic programmes. Private banks that extended large loans to Latin American countries had expected the IMF to play an influential role in the economy of these countries to help them repay their debt. Officials said the Latin American Reserve Fund will allow member nations to obtain larger loans without having to agree to specific economic programmes, a condition set by the IMF to get additional funding. The Latin American Reserve Fund will be capitalised at $500 million, which it will collect from the Andean Reserve Fund.

LONDON SHARES BOOSTED BY U.S. TRADE FIGURES LONDON, JUNE 14, REUTER - SHARES RECEIVED A STRONG BOOST FROM SETTER THAN EXPECTED U.S. APRIL TRADE FIGURES AND WERE CARRIED TO THEIR HIGHS IN AFTERNOON TRADING IN RESPONSE TO THE SHARPLY HIGHER WALL STREET SHOWING ON THE FIGURES, DEALERS SAID. U.K. SHARE ANALYSTS SAID THE FALL IN THE U.S. APRIL ADJUSTED TRADE DEFICIT TO 9.89 BILLION DLRS FROM 11.7 BILLION REVISED IN MARCH WAS FAR BELOW THE 12 BILLION TO 13 BILLION DLR DEFICIT ANTICIPATED BY MARKETS HERE.

BY 1423 GMT THE FISE 100 INDEX WAS TRADING 19.5 POINTS HIGHER AT 1,858.3 AND LOOKING SET TO CLOSE ABOVE THE 1,850 LEVEL FOR DWLY THE SECOND TIME SINCE THE OCTOBER 1987 SHARE CRASH.

NICHOLAS KNIGHT, ANALYST AT BROKERS JAMES CAPEL, SAID THE TRADE FIGURES WERE "UNEQUIVOCALLY GOOD NEWS" ON THE U.S. ECONOM' AND FORECAST THAT THE DOW JONES INDUSTRIAL AVERAGE COULD WELL HEAD UP TO 2,150 POINTS VERY SOON, LIFTING THE FTSE WITH IT. A NUMBER OF ANALYSTS SAID THE MAIN POSITIVE FACTOR IN THE FIGURES WAS THE 6.4 PCT FALL IN SEASONALLY ADJUSTED U.S. APRIL IMPORTS TO 36.11 BILLION DLRS.

COUNTY NATWEST'S DUNCAN SQUIRES SAID WHILE IT WAS ALWAYS POSSIBLE IMPORTS WOULD RISE AGAIN, TODAY'S DATA GAVE EVIDENCE THE U.S. TRADE GAP WAS TENDING TO NARROW. WORRIES ABOUT THE BUDGET AND TRADE DEFICITS HELPED TRIGGER THE 1987 CRASH

London Gold

LONDON, JUNE 14, REUTER - GOLD BULLION CAME UNDER PRESSURE FROM SOME U.S.-BASED FUND SELLING FOLLOWING A MUCH LOWER THAN ANTICIPATED U.S. APRIL TRADE DEFICIT AND HAD AN AFTERNOOM FIX OF 446.50 DLRS AN OUNCE, ITS LOWEST SETTING FOR FIVE WEEKS. THE METAL HAD EARLIER BEEN FIXED AT 450.50 DLRS AND HAD A CLOSING RANGE ON MONDAY OF 449.20/449.70.

ALL THE PRECIOUS METALS INITIALLY HELD UP WELL FOLLOWING NEWS OF THE SMALL DEFICIT, WITH SILVER AND PLATINUM EVEN EDGING UP SLIGHTLY, A PERFORMANCE ONE TRADER DESCRIBED AS "VERY IMPRESSIVE." BUT AS THE DOLLAR BEGAN TO EXTEND GAINS FURTHER IN EARLY AFTERNOON BUSINESS ALL THREE CAME UNDER PRESSURE

London Money Market

LONDON, JUNE 14, REUTER - MONEY MARKET INTEREST RATES ADDED TO THIS HORNING'S GAINS TO STAND AS MUCH AS 3/16 POINT FIRMER IN LATE TRADING, DEALERS SAID.

THIS FOLLOWED A MUCH SMALLER THAN EXPECTED U.S. TRADE DEFICIT FOR APRIL OF 9.89 BILLION DLRS WHICH COMPARED TO MARKET EXPECTATIONS OF A 12 TO 13 BILLION DLR SHORTFALL.

PREDICTABLY, THE DOLLAR MADE SHARP GAINS AND TOOK THE SPOTLIGHT AWAY FROM STERLING. THE POUND CONSEQUENTLY FELL BACK AND AT 1500 GHT HAD LOST G.7 IN TRADE WEIGHTED TERMS TO STAND AT 76.4. THE BENCHMARK THREE MONTHS INTERBANK RATE WAS BID 3/16 POINT FIRMER AT 8-9/16 1/2 PCT.

Wall Street Market Report

New York, June 14, Reuter — Wall Street stocks rallied on an early surge of buying, especially in the Blue Chips. The rally followed a smaller than expected April US trade gap. The continued cut in the gap is evidence of a turnaround in US trade, US trade representative Clayton Yeutter said.

The Dow was up 32 at 2131 after climbing to 2138 and still above the post-crash closing high of 2110.08 set April 12. Gainers led declining issues five to one. Trading slowed somewhat. Blue Chips led the active list, with General Electric up one at 44-3/8, IBM up 2-1/8 at 119-1/8 and Exxon ahead 3/4 at 46-5/8.

28,061.80, AFTER FALLING TO 27,934.15 AT MIDDAY. IT ROSE 116.18 ON MONDAY. ADVANCES NEARLY MATCHED DECLINES. VOLUME WAS 850 MLN SHARES, AFTER MONDAY'S 900 MLN. COMMUNICATION, BANK, LAND TRANSPORT, WAREHOUSE STOCK AND TRANSPORT MACHINERY ISSUES LED THE DECLINE.

BROKERS SAID THE MARKET CONTINUED TO LACK DIRECTION IN THE

ASSENCE OF INCENTIVES. STEELS, WHICH LAST WEEK WERE ACTIVELY TRADED BUT ON MONDAY HERE DULL, BEGAN TO REVIVE IN THE AFTERNOON SESSION ON

ATTENTION FROM INSTITUTIONAL INVESTORS, BROKERS SAID.
SUCH RELATIVELY CHEAP LARGE CAPITAL STOCKS ACCOUNTED FOR OWER HALF OF LAST WEEK'S TURNOVER, WHICH NEARED RECORD LEVELS ON SOME DAYS. THE HUGE VOLUME LED THE EXCHANGE ON FRIDAY TO CUT 30 MINUTES FROM AFTERNOON TRADING. TADAAKI UEHARA, AMALYST AT WAKO SECURITIES, SAID THE HALF-HOUR IS LIKELY TO BE RESTORED, SINCE VOLUME HAS BEEN NOTABLY LOWER THIS WEEK KOBE STEEL ROSE 13 YEN TO 487, KAWASAKI STEEL 15 TO 549,

MIPPON KOKAN EIGHT TO 520, AND MIPPON STEEL 14 TO 529. A RUSH OF BUY ORDERS FOR KOBE STEEL DURING THE AFTERNOON SESSION LED TO A BRIEF SUSPENSION OF TRADE IN THAT STOCK. SOME SHIPBUILDING ISSUES ALSO SHOWED SIGNS OF LIFE AFTER LYING DORMANT ON MONDAY, WITH MITSUBISHI HEAVY GAINING SIX YEN

TO 805 AND ISHIKAMAJIMA-HARIMA HEAVY 16 TO 957. MONFERROUS METALS AND MINING STOCKS PERFORMED WELL THANKS TO HIGHER WORLDWIDE RAW MATERIALS PRICES. MITSUI MINING AND SHELTING ROSE 25 YEM TO 635, DOMA MINING 14 TO 689, TOHO ZINC 16 TO 538 AND NIPPON MINING TWO TO 620.

KD deposit rates edge higher

KUWAITI dinar interbank deposit rates edged higher yester-day as a new tender for KD150 million in treasury bills and government bonds was held.

But traders were mainly sidelined in the absence of any clear market direction. Dealers said thin trade focused on short-dated funds as banks covered positions. Kuwait's Central Bank is expected to allot KD100 million of 91-day treasury bills and K.D50 million of government bonds late yesterday or early today.

Overnight funds dealt at 1-1/2 per cent, while tomorrow-next rose to 7-1/2, 6-1/2 per cent from quotes of four, three on Monday. Dealers reported business early in the day at eight per cent.

Spot-next also edged up 1/2 point to 7-1/2, 6-1/2 per cent. One week funds initially dealt at eight per cent, then slipped back to 7-1/2, 6-1/2 per cent. One-month rose to 6-3/4, 1/2 per cent from quotes of 6-5/8, 1/4 on Monday with early business reported at 6-3/4 per cent. Two- and three-months both inched up to 6-5/8, 3/8 per cent from levels of 6-1/2, 7/16. Sixmonths to one-year were little changed but quoted in a slightly wider range of 6-5/8, 1/4 per cent.

The Central Bank left its dinar exchange rate unchanged for the fourth successive day at 0.27570/ 80 to the dollar.

Commercial banks quoted spot rates of 0.27580/87. Meanwhile in Bahrain, Saudi deposits surged in active trading yesterday as banks anticipated a tight market next week when payment for Saudi Arabia's first government bond issue is due. Banks in the kingdom were allotted their first bonds on Monday after a 1.5 billion riyal ($400 million) tender for one- to five-year paper, but settlement is not due until next Monday.

Traders said the scramble for funds was accentuated by uncertainty over the bond issue, which has been shrouded in secrecy.

Most banks in Saudi Arabia appear to have been allotted their bids in full, but it is unclear if the issue was fully subscribed and how much liquidity will drain next week.

The development bonds have dominated the rival interbank market both within Saudi Arabia and in the London and Bahrain centres where banks actively sought funds yesterday.

Spot-next funds, Thursday/ Saturday, were quoted at a firm 9-1/4, 8-3/4 per cent, while the yield curve for one- to six-month deposits turned flat at eight per cent bid or slightly higher.

One-year funds were little changed at 8-3/8, 3/16 per cent. The spot rival was steady at 3.7502/05 to the dollar.

Currency rates

Malaysia seeks commodity tie-up with Indonesia

JOGJAKARTA, June 14, (Reuter): Malaysian Prime Minister Datuk Seri Mahathir Mohamad proposed today that Indonesia and Malaysia, two of the world's leading natural commodity suppliers, co-ordinate commodity output to underpin prices.

Speaking to reporters after a meeting with President Suharto in the central Java city of Jogjakarta, he said co-operation bet-ween the two South-East Asian neighbours had worked well in helping tin prices recover.

Extended

"If such co-operation is exten-. ded to other commodities, such as rubber, palm oil and crude oil, we believe that we can get more income without having to increase supply," Mahathir said at a news conference before flying home. Indonesia and Malaysia are the world's biggest rubber producers, and major suppliers of palm oil. They are also the world's top two tin produce: and export growing levels of coffee and cocoa. There was no immediate indication of Indonesia's reaction to the proposal, but Jakarta has been reluctant in the past to co-operate too closely with its South-East Asian neighbour because they are after the same

Bonds and dollar post sharp gains

Wall Street stock prices surge to highest levels

NEW YORK, June 14, (Reuter): Financial markets reacted enthusiastically today to a lowerthan-expected US trade deficit for April, with stocks, bonds and the dollar all posting sharp gains. Gold prices declined.

Wall Street stock prices surged to their highest levels since the October crash with the Dow Jones Industrial Index up 33.07 points at 2,131.47 after about 45 minutes of trading.

Brisk Advancing stocks outnumbered losers by a 9-1 margin and trading was brisk, with New York Stock Exchange volume at 89 million shares.

The Dow's highest close since Oct 19, 1987, came on April 12, when it hit 2,110.08.

The blue chip stocks surrendered some of their gain to profittaking, but remained 30 points higher after an hour-and-a-half of trading.

The dollar jumped to near its highest values since late October after the Commerce Department said the seasonally adjusted deficit fell to $9.89 billion in April, the lowest in more than three years, from a revised 11.7 billion in March.

US bond prices also rose after the report. US Treasury bonds rallied in New York to 101-26/32 from 101-4/32 last night to yield 8.95 per cent against yesterday's 9.01 per cent. Within minutes the dollar rose 1.5 pfennigs from 1.7285 marks to touch a high of 1.7425 before easing as the West German central bank intervened to sell dollars in line with the policy of the Group of Seven leading industrial nations to keep currencies broadly stable.

US trade deficit fell to $9.89 billion in April

(UPI): The US merchandise trade deficit for April plunged to a seasonally adjusted $9.89 billion from the revised March gap of $11.7 billion led by a sharp drop in imports, the Commerce Department said today. President Reagan remarked during an Oval Office picturetaking session today with visiting Italian Prime Minister Ciriaco Demita that the narrowing of the trade gap in April shows the deficit "has been on a continued decline brought about a decrease in imports and an increase in

If trade continues at April's rate for the rest of the year, the annual deficit would be $141.8 billion, a significant improvement from 1978's $170.3 billion.

The improvement in April trade figures was much greater than expected. Analysts had predicted the gap would widen to about $12.5 billion.

Imports

Not allowing for seasonal variations, the deficit rose slightly to $9.8 billion, up 2.6 per cent from the revised March deficit of $9.5 billion, the Department said. The Department previously reported the March trade deficit at $9.7 billion.

Insurance companies reject intervention

LOCAL insurance companies have completed their memorandums to be submitted to the Ministry of Commerce and Industry regarding the draft law for controlling and supervising insurance companies.

Insurance sources informed a

For an example, insurance companies were compelled to insure cars. Their memos they said, rejected intervention by the law in the internal structure of the insurance companies such as the establishment of several departments instead of the present joint department.

This obliges local companies to bear more financial costs which are the first of its kind in all Arab and international insurance laws. The insurance companies also rejected the stipulation to obtain prior permission from the ministry of Commerce when they desired to open new internal or external branches instead of the present procedure which only requires notifying the ministry about the intention to open branches.

Rejected

The companies also rejected the condition obliging them to appoint a Kuwaiti national as director-general which stipulation they claimed deprives the companies from selecting there is no justification for imposing this condition as all members of the board of insurance companies are Kuwaiti nationals.

The companies also rejected the demand to deposit an amount of KD50,000 in the account of the Ministry of Commerce for each branch of the company. This they claimed, would oblige each company to deposit at least KD250,000 without being invested.

However, this condition could be applicable only to foreign insurance companies and has no justification to be imposed on

Kuwaiti companies. The companies rejected the law which compels them to obtain previous approval on all insurance policies, conditions and prices from the Ministry of

, Top players course

BROOKLINE, Mass., June 14, (Reuter): Three of the favourites for this week's US Open, Sandy Lyle, Seve Ballesteros and Tom Watson, were pleased with their first look at the championship course at the Country Club here yesterday.

"It's a nice pleasant course. It could be in France or maybe parts of Britain," said Lyle, who was born in England of Scottish parents.

Traditionally, US Open courses terrorise players, who com-plain bitterly about extremely narrow fairways, ankle-deep rough and rock-hard greens. Champion

"Sometimes the US Open rough is not playable. The rough here is at least playable," Lyle, the reigning US Masters champion, said after playing the 7,010yard par-71 course.

'This course plays very fair." said Ballesteros, who arrived here after winning a four-way playoff at the Westchester Classic on Sunday. "The rough is not as bad as it usually is for the US Open and the fairways seem to be wider," added the Spaniard, who fini-shed third in last year's Open in San Francisco. Watson, second to Scott Simpson in last year's Open, praised the hilly, tree-lined course. "The fairways are beautiful and the greens are in great shape," he "If the golf course stays in this condition, it will give up some scores," added Watson, who won the 1982 US Open and five British Opens. "I think under-280 will win," Lyle, the leading money winner on the US Tour with more than $600,000, agreed with Watson. "I think four or five under par will be a good score at the end of the week. Entire

The last time the US Open was staged here, in 1963, three players finished tied at nine over par 293, which remains the highest winning score for an Open since 1935.

Julius Boros defeated Arnold Palmer and Jacky Cupit in the 18-hole playoff by shooting a ice and in the state of the sta umpionship. However, during that Open 25 years ago there were strong winds, which caused some scores to soar into the 90s.

If we have wind, it will be a different story," predicted Watson, who grew up playing golf on the windy prairies of Kansas, which helps explain his five British Open titles.

"Wind would make a real difference," added Ballesteros. The greens are so small here that with wind they will be very hard to hit."

Weather aiready was affecting the course. The area, just outside Boston, is in a heat wave which, according to Watson, has had a beneficial effect.

Thick "The heat will help golfers by drying out the rough and preventing it from growing too thick," Watson said. "It will also force the greenskeepers to water the greens, which should help keep them a little soft."

However, the players — invariably optimistic before a tournament begins - also know there is plenty of trouble lurking around the Country Club. "It's still a golf course that can grab you," Lyle admitted.

Taekwondo to be seen at 1988 Seoul Olympics

SEOUL, June 14, (Reuter): An ancient Korean martial art forced underground for 35 years bursts onto the Olympic stage at thi year's Seoul Games when the power and speed of tackwondo will be seen as a demonstration

Spectators will be able to watch men and women kicking and punching with bewildering speed and flexibility and with power which could smash a thick board - or a rib-cage, if protective clothing was not mandatory.

Officials at the hilltop headquarters of the World Taekwondo Federation (WTF) in a Seoul suburb say the sport now has 22 million participants in 110 nations.

They believe tackwondo ---'the way of feet and fists' - is challenging karate, kung fu and judo to become the most popular Oriental martial art. Official

Cho Hui-Sok, director of international relations for the federation, said: "Tackwondo is an official sport at the Asian Games, the Pan-American Games and the African Games. We hope the International Olympic Committee will accept it as an official sport for the 1992 Olympics."

The earliest evidence of tackwondo is provided in 2,000-yearold murals from the Koguryo Dynasty, which show fighting techniques similar to those of the present day.

Taekwondo could be practised only in secret when Japan occupied Korea from 1910 to 1945 and banned traditional Korean martial arts as part of its colonial policies.

After the occupation ended, the sport boomed in its home nation. The name tackwondo was used for the first time in the

The 1950-53 Korean war gave tackwondo its first international exposure when soldiers from the mainly-American 16-nation United Nations Command became interested in the sport and took the rudiments of it back bome with them.

The WTF was founded in 1973 and has held regular world championships ever since.

The sport's phenomenal growth owes much to the dedicated work of South Korean instructors who have travelled all over the world and to the skilled diplomacy of multi-lingual WTF president Kim Un-Yong, who is also the South Korean member of the International Olympic Committee.

Officials believe that one of the main reasons for tackwondo's popularity is that, unlike most forms of karate, punches and kicks are not, 'pulled' at the last

"I think one of the reasons taekwondo has grown so fast in the last 20 years is because it is aggressive, dynamic and a fullcombat sport:

Pakistan opened the scoring in the fourth minute with a converted short corner by outside right Qasim Khan, but Kenya's robust defence managed to hold the Pakistanis at bay until inside left Mussadaq Hussein scored again in the 30th minute after a neat pass from Qasim.

Six minutes later inside left

Zahid Sharif chipped an accurate pass to centre forward Moham-med Irfan, who sounded the boards with a third goal. Irfan scored a fourth in the 42nd minute. Inside right Shahbaz Ahmed and midfielder Tahir Zaman scored two field goals in the second half and team captain Nasir converted a short corner to produce the final result of 7-0.

In their third match of the tournament, Pakistan today beat the Soviet Union 4-1 (halftime 2-1). Athletics meet EAST BERLIN, June 14.

Crowe out for rest of season with back 82.1 overs and 128 for three (S.

LONDON, June 14, (Reuter): Martin Crowe, New Zealand's accomplished Test batsman who plays for Somerset, has been forced by back problems to give up cricket for the rest of the English season.

Somerset announced the news yesterday, and said Crowe's replacement as their full-time overseas player would be Australian Test all-rounder Steve

Waugh has been on the county's staff since last year, playing when Crowe was injured or unavailable. He has shown he will be a worthy successor to the New Zealander, and after hitting an unbeaten 103 in the current game against Warwickshire at Bath, the Australian was awarded his county cap. Advised Somerset said in a statement: "Following extensive tests and xrays from the club's orthopaedic surgeon, we have been advised that due to a serious back problem in the lower lumbar region, it is in Martin's best interests that he rests for the next four months.

The club deeply regrets the loss of Martin's services this season. However, Martin's fitness is of paramount importance and we look forward to having him back for the 1989 season.

Somerset's ready-made replacement underlined his quality with his second hundred

West Indian all-rounder Franklyn Stephenson continues to give inspiration to Nottinghamshire following the retirement from the county last September pair, Richard Hadlee and Clive Rice. of their outstanding overseas

Their departure created a gap that one replacement alone could not fill, but Stephenson has provided a good measure of compensation with some consistently fine displays, and put title holders Notts on course for only their second championship win of the season in the current game at Trent Bridge.

Paceman Stephenson took five for 42 as Glamorgan were routed for 91, giving Notts a first innings lead of 87. Then he struck the top score of 65 as Notts totalled 230, leaving Glamorgan a victory target of 318 on a pitch helping the seamers.

By the close Glamorgan were nine for two, with Stephenson once again spearheading the assault by grabbing one of the wickets.

Australian captain Allan Bor-der hammered his third century of the season for Essex, 161 against Sussex at Ilford which lifted his adopted county to 462 for eight declared — a first innings lead of 307. Border's flawless innings took 220 deliveries and contained 20

West Germany shatter Denmark's dreams

Germany, June 14, (Reuter): West Germany shattered Denmark's dreams of glory at the European Soccer Championship finals when the hosts won a Group One tie 2-0 today.

A 10th minute goal by newcomer Juergen Klinsmann and a second from little midfielder Olaf Thon four minutes from time was enough for West Germany to remain on course for the semifinals.

The adventurous Danish team again paid the price for com-placency in defence — as they did in their 3-2 defeat to Spain on Saturday.

Lacked

The result left them with no chance of reaching the last four, a fact that will be regretted by neutral fans everywhere even if 'Danish Dynamite' lacked the explosive force shown in the last championship in France four years ago or in the 1986 World Cup in Mexico.

The win gave West Germany three points from two matches and took it a step closer to the semifinal round.

The defeat signalled the end of a talented Danish generation. Denmark still has to play Italy, but even a win would not be enough to qualify the Danes for

Spain beat Denmark 3-2 in the opening round, while Italy and West Germany drew 1-1. In the 9th minute, Soeren

Lerby misheaded a clearing and landed the ball in front of Rudi Voeller. The West German striker was blocked by Danish goalkeeper Peter Schmiechel, but Klinsmann pounced on the rebound for an easy goal from many, June 14, (Reuter): England and the Netherlands clash for survival in the European Soccer Championship finals tomorrow in a match overshadowed by the menace of hooligan violence.

Defeat for either side would mean virtual elimination from the tournament following Sunday's upsets in which England were beaten 1-0 by outsiders Ireland in Stuttgart and the highly-fancied Dutch by the same margin by the Soviet Union in Cologne.

Massed

But the outcome of the group two encounter in the Rheinstadion, in which England goalkeeper Peter Shilton will make his 100th international appearance, is of minimal concern to security forces massed in Duesseldorf to contain fan trouble.

Nearly 200 hooligans, most of them English, have been detained since the championship kicked off last Friday and police fear further confrontations when thousands of fans converge for the potentially most explosive clash of the two-week tour-

The English and Dutch teams have meanwhile sought to swallow the disappointment of Sunday's defeats in which both succumbed despite applying most of the pressure and creating abundant chances. "It's made the Holland game

By Gail Seery in Amman

WELSHMAN David Llewellin will be first on the starters' ramp for today's Rothmans Jordan Rally. He will be at the wheel of an Audi Quattro Al, and is partnered by his usual navigator Phil Short.

Llewellin is an experienced and able driver, and is unlikely to experience major difficulties with the route. However, there is already some speculation that team orders might be enforced in order to give Saeed Al Hajri a much needed boost in the cham-

Navigator

Second to leave the Roman Ampitheatre in the centre of Amman will be reigning Middle East champion, Mohammed Bin Sulayem, and navigator Ronan Morgan, in the new-look Toyota Celica Twincam Turbo. Sulayem won the event last year, by a seven minute margin, after Al Hajri lost vital practice time following the death of his father. Al Hajri will follow him out, in the blue and white Rothmans Audi Quattro A2. The Oatari star has so far suffered nothing but setbacks in his bid to regain the Middle East-title. Most recently, practice problems have arisen again. However, the Qatari is taking things with characteristic stoicism, despite having had to spend several days idle.

Hajri was busy yesterday practising in a borrowed 4x4, in order to check his pace notes, but these really do need to be checked at speed, and it has to be conceded that his lack of true practice may be a disadvantage to him in the event. In the past he always went for an early lead on Sulayem, knowing that the Celica's extra speed would give it the advantage on the second and third days of the event. This year however he is in the Audi Quattro, which is a far more powerful car than the old Porsche 911 SCRS. On the other hand the 4wd will not prove an advantage here. The Rothmans team are aiming to let Sulayem make the running on the first leg of the rally. Al Hajri said that he thought

Llewellin could not be discounted as a winner of the event. 'He's a good driver, and I'm sure he's coming here to win the rally. He's going to do his best, and we are also going to do our best to win the rally. Rothmans is here to take places one and two." Chance

"This is not a new rally for me. I've been here five or six times, and won three times, but I think this year is the best. The stages are shorter and will give everyone a chance to finish the event. It's really very good that they have changed a lot of the stages this year, all the rough stages have been cut out and this is better for everybody, not just for cars one

However, this is the first time that Al Hajri has done the Jordan Rally with the Audi Quattro, and he is not yet prepared to say how good the Quattro will be for this rally. The situation with his practice car has made it harder for him to judge, and has also hindered him, and perhaps placed him at a slight disadvantage. "It is a problem, because I just practised for one day. I had to practice in other cars, and I haven't checked the pace notes at speed." Al Hajri's only major rival. Mohammed Bin Sulayem also identifies Llewellin as a man who is bound to do well. "He's a good driver, but I am after first place myself --- otherwise I wouldn't be here. I'm not underestimating anybody, I expect tough competition from the start, from both David and Saeed. Saeed is a former champion, but I think there is more pressure on him than me. can afford to accept second place if necessary for the good of the championship."

Helps Sulayem said that although changes have been made to the stages, and also to some of the surfaces, he did not feel that the character of the Jordan Rally had changed very much. "The new surface helps other cars, not my car, but it's better." There will be more tarmac this year, and Sulayem will be able to put his European tarmac experience to good use. "It's no problem now, and as a professional driver I have to accept everything."

Traditionally in the Jordan Rally, Al Hajri used to take a lead on the first night and Sulayem used to claw it back on the first day. Sulayem does not feel that the situation is likely to alter particularly this year. "The traction on my car was not as good as his Porsche, that's why he used to take it on the first night, and then on the second day, when traction was no longer so vital I used to take it back. I can tell you now that at the end of the first leg Saeed and Llewellin will be leading and maybe I'll be third or fourth. I rely on the second day," said Sulavern.

"The nature of the rally hasn't changed that much for me. But because of the Quattros 1 will have a very hard task here. The cars are proven to be much quicker than the Toyota, more powerful and with better traction. I know it's a handicap for me not having the four wheel drive, but perhaps I can over-

Stages
Prince Abdullah of Jordan told the Arab Times that he felt the changes made to the stages would be of benefit to the ordinary drivers. "There's more tarmac and they've done a lot of work on softening up the desert stages so that Group N and Group A cars can survive a lot better. From our point of view, the softening of the stages will help us against Hani Bisharat in the Toyota Celica. It is definitely better for the ordinary drivers."

The Prince said that he was feeling happier about the tarmac stages. In the past Amr Bilbeisi used to take over for these segments of the rally, but he has retired from rallying for the time being and is replaced in the Opel Manta 400 by his elder brother Ali. "Ali is a fantastic navigator," said Prince Abdullah. "He is very calm and precise on his notes.'
